COR CAPITAL WELCOMES NEW HEAD OF DISTRIBUTION

Cor Capital is pleased to announce the appointment of Justin Brooks as Head of Distribution. Justin's appointment builds on the firm's distribution efforts of the last couple of years.

Justin brings to the business an extensive funds management background, including experience both as a portfolio manager and in various distribution roles. Justin's early career saw him managing global equities for National Mutual and Macquarie, before holding senior distribution roles with several firms including Credit Suisse, Pengana Capital and Investors Mutual, with broad experience across multiple asset classes including alternative investments.

Justin will focus on broadening our distribution across the wealth management market, including to advisers, dealer groups, family offices, private banks, research houses and specialist investment/asset consultants.

Commenting on the appointment, Tom Rachcoff, Managing Director said:

"We are pleased to welcome Justin to the Cor Capital team to further the considerable distribution efforts of the last couple of years and ensure continuity for our clients and prospective investors. His experience in the market should allow us to broaden our footprint as we look to further introduce our strategy across the intermediary advice landscape."

Justin said:

"There has been a paucity of choice for investors seeking liquid alternative investments and Cor Capital provides a proven exposure to a non-correlated return source that many investors have been seeking."

Tom added:

"The Cor Capital Fund's performance through time speaks for itself. It has been true to label as an uncorrelated, defensive liquid alternative with deliberate upside capture. It is a strategy that can hold a place in a wide range of investor asset allocations."
